FPJ POLL PROTEST

Opposition concedes

By Michael Leo Utac, Gil C. Calacungan, Jr. and Cynthia D. Balana

ALMOST one year after the hotly-contested May 2004 elections won by President Macapagal-Arroyo by one of the skinniest margins, the opposition has virtually admitted that it has lost its battle.

House Minority Leader Francis Escudero said yesterday that the "legal battle to open the ballots and count them through the Presidential Electoral Tribunal (PET) is closed."

"Insofar as the PET is concerned, we already accepted that the PET option to use that as a vehicle to open the ballots and find out who won is closed. Tangnap kami ang katinuturingan yon. (We have already accepted that.) That's the reality," he said.

But Escudero, secretary general of the recently-launched United Opposition, quickly pointed out that although the legal battle was lost, the fight of ordinary Filipinos against an abusive and corrupt administration would continue.

Escudero did not rule out the possibility of Poe supporters taking to the streets. "These options are all open and it had been done in the past. We just have to see what will happen in the coming weeks," he said.

A day earlier, actress Susan Roces, the widow of opposition presidential candidate Fernando Poe Jr., finally abandoned her bid to substitute for her late husband in the electoral protest filed with the Supreme Court, saying "Enough is enough."

Roces' decision not to contest the SC ruling was immediately welcomed by both Malacañang and administration congressmen.

"We are impressed by the decision made by Ma Susan Rocés and we are sure she considered what is best for our country," said Press Secretary Ignacio Bunye in a statement.

Mr Arroyo herself refused to comment on Rocés' decision during a briefing yesterday.

But her legal counsel said the President felt finally relieved that the last obstacle to her presidency has been removed.

"The President is very happy about the decision of Susan Rocés. As a matter of fact, I had her attend the mass in Our Lady of Fatima parish in Las Piñas last Sunday for thanksgiving," said lawyer Norberto Macalintal, lead counsel of the President in the election protest.

But Escudero clarified that legal defeat was not due to actress Rocés' decision not to file a motion for reconsideration to the March 29 ruling of the high court jinking her bid to substitute for FPJ.

"It's not Susan Rocés who surrendered or throw in the towel. It was the Supreme Court (whose members comprise the PET) who stopped her," said Escudero.

In her manifestation filed with the SC Monday, Rocés "expressed disgust" over the high court decision, he said.

"She disagrees completely with the decision. She thinks that another decision contrary to what was handed down should have been made by the Supreme Court. But she also accepts the fact that the court has closed its doors. Now let it not be said that she's throwing in the towel," he added.

Malacañang, however, ignored Rocés' resentment over the PET decision. "I believe the overall effect would be the lessening of tension and for this we are grateful," Bunye said.

At the Senate, opposition Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile said yesterday that Rocés made the right move.

"I think that Susan Rocés... was correct in taking the position she has taken," he said. "I think, realistically speaking, it would have been very difficult to expect a reversal of that decision of the Supreme Court," he told reporters.

Sen. Luisa "Loi" Ejercito said that Mr Rocés' decision "should be respected."

"Deep in the minds of the people it's clear who won the elections," added Sen. Jinggoy Estrada.

In a statement, Lakas-CMD Reps. Edwin Uy (Isabela) and Antonio Cuenco (Cebu) said that Rocés' decision provided a "full and selfless closure" on the issue.

"It will serve no purpose if their supporters take their fight to the streets, especially if they continue ignoring the truth about President Arroyo's victory which has long been pronounced," Uy said.

Cuenco said Rocés' decision showed her respect for the rule of law and the Supreme Court. With reports from TJ Murguio and Philip C. Tabara

Sandigan OKs Erap visit by show biz pals

By Nelson Flores

THE SANDIGANBAYAN yesterday allowed Fernando Poe Jr.'s widow, actress Susan Rocés, and other show biz personalities to visit deposed president Joseph Estrada at his rest house in Tunay, Rizal where he is currently detained on plunder charges.

The anti-graft court decision came after the Philippine National Police withdrew its opposition to an earlier motion filed by Estrada's lawyer Rene Saguisag seeking the court's permission for the planned visit by Rocés and other movie personalities.

The court, however, limited the visiting hours to only 8 p.m.

The PNP had opposed Saguisag's motion, citing the lack of manpower and funds for the proposed visit.

It was the first time that the PNP opposed a motion of this nature filed by the defense panel.

The PNP said its resources are devoted to the antiterrorism campaign of the government.

Saguisag said the proposed visit was meant to celebrate Estrada's 68th birthday in advance and to inaugurate the memorabilia of his friend, the late FPJ.

In withdrawing its opposition to Saguisag's motion, the PNP assured the security of the former president and his visitors.

Saguisag expressed elation over the decision of the Sandiganbayan granting his motion.

He said there was no reason for the PNP to oppose the planned visit, noting that the basis of its opposition was purely speculative and unfounded.

"Ang security risk lang down ay si Eddie Garcia pero sa pakikita lang yon," Saguisag said with a laugh.

He added that it was totally unfounded to brand Rocés, Dolphy, and other show biz supporters of the former president who plan to visit him as security risk.

"Ma Rocés is a symbol of orderliness and calm. In fact, she already withdrew her electoral protest to avoid anymore trouble. She deserved this visit," Saguisag said.

Lawyer Jose Flaminiano, a member of Estrada's legal panel, expressed surprise at the decision of the Sandiganbayan.

He expressed a similar view with Saguisag, but stressed that the PNP's fears were unfounded.

"Sa kyo noon, sinong pupunta roon, (It's that far, so who will go there)" Flaminiano said.

Cardinals will have to contend with Muslims issue

MANILA — An appointment to an important ecclesiastical position in the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church in the Philippines is expected to be a controversial one, and the appointment of a cardinal to the position of archbishop of Manila would be no exception.

Interim archbishop of Manila, Cardinal Jaime Sin, said he would not be a candidate for the position of archbishop of Manila, but he would support the appointment of a cardinal to the position.

When Cardinal Sin was appointed archbishop of Manila, he was the first Filipino to hold the position. He was also the first Filipino to be appointed to the position of cardinal.

IS THE COUNTRY'S justice system going to the termites?

Justice Secretary Raul Gonzalez yesterday admitted the government effort to have Rod Strunk extradited from the United States has been snagged by the destruction of the original copy of the extradition petition by termites.

Strunk is the suspected mastermind in the killing of his wife, actress Nida Blanca.

"It's an embarrassment to the present secretary of justice," Gonzalez said.

Gonzalez admitted the loss of the documents as he announced that the Department of Justice would be making Strunk's extradition one of the "talking points" during US Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice's coming visit to the Philippines.

"We would like to tell the US to comply with the extradition treaty. There must be reciprocity in the extradition treaty," Gonzalez said, pointing out that the Philippines has extradited a number of individuals wanted in the US, but hardly any had come this way.

A US court dismissed on Nov. 12, 2003, the Philippine government petition seeking Strunk's extradition.

The US court said the evidence presented by the Philippine government "is so inconsistent and conflicting that it provides little competent evidence to support the conclusion that Strunk hired [Philip] Medel to murder Blanca."

The US court, however, said the government could present a new case against Strunk "should new, competent evidence be submitted."

In a memo to Gonzalez yesterday, the DOJ extradition panel said there was strong ground to revive the extradition petition because there were new witnesses who could give "direct (eyewitness account), credible, consistent testimony" on the killing.

The panel also pointed to the latest Court of Appeals decision "finding probable cause against Strunk for the murder of (Blanca) and which decision has been upheld by the Supreme Court."

But before the petition can be revived, Gonzalez said the DOJ would ask the US court for help in reconstructing its extradition petition for Strunk.

The government had sent copies of its evidence against Strunk to the US court with its first petition.

"According to the one holding it [evidence] before, it was destroyed by anay (termites)," Gonzalez said, brushing aside speculation the documents may have been deliberately destroyed.

Gonzalez described the loss as a "case of simple negligence."

"It's force majeure (inevitable)," he said. "The problem is we cannot find any duplicates, which is strange."

Blanca was killed in November 2001. Strunk fled to the US shortly after to visit his ailing mother and never returned.

China-Japan row escalates

CHINA - A row between Japan and China escalated Tuesday as the two Asian powers jostle for influence in the South China Sea and across Asia.

Japan's Foreign Ministry said it was "deeply concerned" about the Chinese government's actions in the South China Sea, which it claims as its territory. The ministry said it would continue to monitor the situation and would take appropriate measures to protect Japan's interests.

The Chinese government, in turn, said it was "firmly opposed" to Japan's actions in the South China Sea. It said it would continue to maintain its sovereignty over the area and would take appropriate measures to protect its interests.

The row between the two Asian powers began in January when Japan announced it was planning to send a research ship to the South China Sea to collect samples of seabed minerals. China said the ship was a spy ship and demanded that it be stopped.

Japan said the ship was a research vessel and that it had the right to collect samples in the area. It said it would continue to send the ship to the area and would take appropriate measures to protect its interests.

2 Olivarez co-accused left to face suit

By Press-Telegram

Two men accused of co-accusing a woman of sexual assault in a lawsuit filed by the woman's attorney, a judge has ruled that the two men must face the lawsuit. The judge's decision comes after the two men, who are both currently in custody, had previously been allowed to avoid the lawsuit by claiming that they were not the authors of the co-accusations. The judge's decision is a significant victory for the woman's attorney, who has been fighting the lawsuit for several months.

The lawsuit was filed by the woman's attorney, who claims that the two men, who are both currently in custody, had co-accused the woman of sexual assault. The woman's attorney claims that the two men had conspired to frame the woman for the assault. The judge's decision is a significant victory for the woman's attorney, who has been fighting the lawsuit for several months.

LGUs can lead battle vs cyber crime, says exec

By Staff of the Press

Local government units (LGUs) can lead the battle against cyber crime, says a senior executive at a major technology company. The executive, who is a former member of the National Cyber Security Council, believes that LGUs are in the best position to lead the fight against cyber crime because they are closest to the communities that are most affected by the crime. He also believes that LGUs have the resources and expertise to lead the fight against cyber crime.

1. The first step is to identify the variables that are being measured. In this case, the variables are the number of hours spent on each activity (reading, writing, and thinking) and the total number of hours spent on all activities.

[illegible]

1. The first step is to identify the main components of the system. This includes the hardware (CPU, memory, storage) and software (operating system, applications).

2. The second step is to determine the requirements for each component. This includes the performance, reliability, and security requirements.

3. The third step is to select the appropriate components based on the requirements. This involves comparing different products and services to find the best fit.

4. The fourth step is to install and configure the components. This includes setting up the hardware, installing the software, and configuring the system parameters.

5. The fifth step is to test the system to ensure it meets the requirements. This involves running various tests to check the performance, reliability, and security of the system.

6. The sixth step is to document the system configuration and test results. This includes creating a configuration manual and a test report.

7. The seventh step is to maintain the system. This includes monitoring the system performance, updating the software, and replacing the hardware as needed.

8. The eighth step is to provide user training. This involves teaching the users how to use the system and how to troubleshoot common problems.

9. The ninth step is to provide ongoing support. This includes answering user questions, resolving problems, and providing advice on system optimization.

10. The tenth step is to evaluate the system. This involves assessing the system's performance, reliability, and security over time to determine if it meets the requirements.

My Humble, Service,

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 10th inst. and in reply to inform you that the same has been forwarded to the proper authorities for their consideration.
